Program Notes for April: Anthony Carabelli

Director and Public Relations Coordinator for the New Jersey State Italian Commission (www.njitalia.nj.gov), Anthony Carabelli, Jr. will be the speaker at our April dinner.

A resident of Trenton, Anthony plans Commission projects that include the Annual Congress of Italian American Organizations at Rutgers, a discrimination conference at Seton Hall, a NJ and Italy business conference, Italian Liberation Day, and the Annual Congress at Rutgers. These events bring together leaders from the Italian-American community, federal and state elected officials, Italian government representatives, and businesses in NJ and Italy.

In addition, Anthony manages the public relations department of the commission and develops website content, press information, and presentations to promote the Commission and its agenda.

Anthony will be discussing the work of the New Jersey State Italian Commission. The commission is a state level program and its director sits on the Governor's Board. Anthony will outline for our group the goals of the Commission as well as make suggestions as to how our group can work along with a shared agenda.

Anthony will be accompanied by Robert Immordino who spoke at our February IAHC meeting.
