October 2012 Meeting Program:

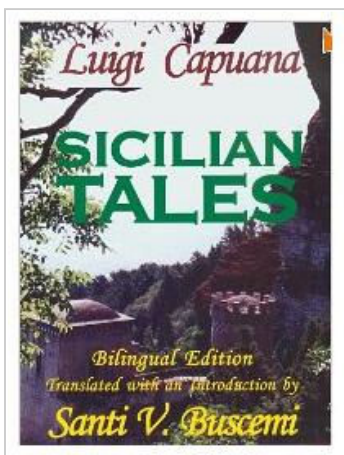

Meet Santi Buscemi

Santi Buscemi is the son of immigrants from Agrigento, Sicily. His translation of Luigi Capuana's C'era Una Volta was published as Sicilian Tales by Dante University of American Press in 2009. This bi-lingual edition includes twenty fairy tales and an introduction to Sicilian literature by the translator.

Buscemi teaches English at Middlesex County College in Edison, NJ and is the author of several college textbooks on rhetoric and composition. He has also published a translation of The Interrogation, one of Capuana's Sicilian plays, in the Journal of Italian Translation.

In February 2012, the play was presented as a dramatic reading at the Italian-American Writers Association. Other works include "A Vision of Sicily" in Primo magazine, and several translations of Capuana's fairy tales in Italica, the Journal of Italian Translation, and Forum Italicum. He is currently seeking a publisher for his translation of Il Marchese di Roccaverdina in its entirety.

One of Santi Buscemi's many works.
